

Do you have experience of living with persistent pain or caring for someone with persistent pain?

We need your help! We are looking for people aged 18 years or over, who are either living with persistent pain (pain lasting more than 3 months) or caring for someone with persistent pain. This needs to be a recent experience, so in the last four years. We are working to find out more about how thoughts, feelings, relationships with others, the way we live, and the how world around us can affect the ways we experience pain. More information about this project can be found at:

<https://criisp.uk/>.

We are holding online information sessions so you can find out more about becoming involved. If you decide to work with us after attending this session, we will reimburse you for the time you spend working with us in the future.

We welcome participation from all backgrounds. If you want to sign up for a session to find out more, please email Ellen Readman, Patient and Public Involvement Research Administrator, at criisp.ppi@uwe.ac.uk

We need your help to ensure the voices of people living with persistent pain, or caring for someone with persistent pain, are heard at every stage of the project
